CONSEQUENCES

A Rose from the Mud

Your selfless contribution towards raising the innocent child Liam Vantos has earned you the thanks and respect of the faithful of Pietos. The clergy promise to take Liam in and raise him in a good home, far from the corruption that claimed his mother's life.

You are granted the ability to further ease suffering: As a standard action that does not provoke an attack of opportunity, you may call upon Pietos' blessing to duplicate the effects of a cure critical wounds spell (no caster level required, no spell failure, no components) on yourself or on one willing target.

This blessing may be used twice before its power is gone.

It's A Trap!

Somehow the word has spread, amongst certain circles of people, about the time you nailed a terrorist to a tree and lit her on fire. You and your friends (and the authorities) know that it's not true, but that doesn't keep the criminal element from believing it.

When dealing with violent criminals, or anyone who respects intimidation through violence, you may remind them of this incident to gain a +20 bonus to Intimidate checks. This can only be used once against a given target or group of related targets.

It is up to the GM to decide if a given target is subject to this ability, and he must inform you before you attempt to use this cert. Also, the GM can decide that relating such a graphic story of torture and execution (even though it's fake) may bring unwanted consequences . . . so be wary.

This cert is good for 1 year from the date it is earned.

Favor of General Skyrider

As thanks for your help eliminating a dangerous terrorist, you have earned the favor of General Llandra Skyrider, commander of the Eagle Riders. She has authorized you to partake in some of the Eagle Riders' training, if you desire.

Once per module, you may spend an additional 1 TU training with the Eagle Riders. This grants a +2 bonus to attacks and weapon damage against creatures capable of natural flight (i.e. has wings that are not a magical effect), even if that creature is currently on the ground. If the target has damage reduction that your weapons do not automatically bypass, the damage bonus increases to +7. The bonus lasts for the duration of your next adventure.

Additionally, if you possess a total of 3 'Favor' certs from General Skyrider (including this cert), then this counts as a Special Invitation to join the Eagle Riders branch of the Diamond Legion.
