The Face Book

This evil tome is about a foot square and 2 inches thick. Its pages are apparently made of a thin leather with heavier leather covers. A heal check DC 15 will reveal that the pages are actually made from the skins of different races (which match the faces pictured on the pages) and the covers are from the hide of a demon of some sort.

The Face Book contains 10 pages when it is full (and it currently is). Each page contains an extremely well drawn picture of a face. There is a human male, a half orc female, a desert elf male, a dwarf female, a dwarf male, a halfling male, a sky elf female, a human female, a sea elf male, and an asimar female.

As a full round action, if the opened The Face Book is held to the face of a humanoid, the being's face and form will transform into the one pictured on the page, leaving the page blank. This will effectively give the person a +30 to their disguise check to impersonate the race or creature pictured for one day.

When there are less than 10 pages in The Face Book, it can be refilled. To refill The Face Book, it must be opened and placed upon the face of a living humanoid creature. Over the course of 10 minutes, the creature's skin will be absorbed into The Face Book to form a new page and its face will be imprinted on the newly created page. As the creature will die a slow and grizzly death when it is absorbed into The Face Book, refilling the book is considered an evil act, torture.

Only a wish or miracle spell can bring back a creature added to The Face Book.
